

"Get the Habit" Talk No. 2

Why "Get the Habit?"

Just because—
"Careful, intelligent buying doth breed a profitable habit in a man," quoth Shakespeare. He certainly spoke a great truth, because the habit of wise buying is a second nature with some people. And the way it happened to become a second nature was through following advice which proved the best advice to follow.

Tuberculosis Medicine

Saved This Man's Life

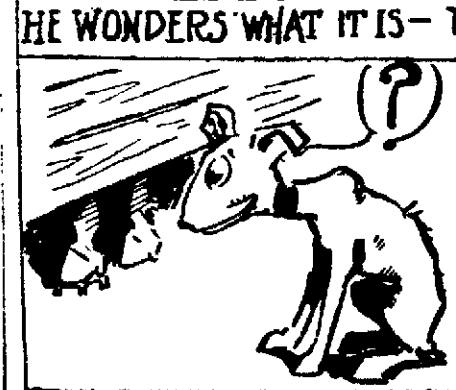

Pneumonia is a serious disease, and often lays the foundation for chronic lung troubles—sometimes tuberculosis results. After Pneumonia, or any serious or stubborn cold, it is best to take Ekkman's Alternative. Don't wait to find out whether the trouble is getting worse, but take Ekkman's Alternative in time and avoid the danger of disease. Read of the recovery in this case.

326 No. 41st St., Phila., Pa.

"Gentlemen, I am getting along very nicely and gaining strength all the time. I now weigh 154 pounds, a gain since September 16, 1907, of 25 pounds more than when I first started to take the Alternative. I wish I had known of it two years ago as it would have saved me much misery and distress. I was suffering from a very serious abscessed lung, which followed a bad attack of pneumonia. My physician and a specialist declared my case hopeless. I cannot but feel thankful to you and the Almighty God for the great healing and chance of health it has brought me."

SIGN AFFIDAVIT. THOMAS REILLY.

Five years later, reports good health. Ekkman's Alternative is effective in Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever, Throat and Lung Troubles, and in upbuilding the system. It is not a stimulant, but a life-forming drug. Ask for booklet, "Using of Recovery," and write to Ekkman Laboratories, Philadelphia, Pa., for motor vehicle. For sale by all leading druggists to Newark.

COBB AND STANAGE ARE DIVIDED ON BOEHLER

Newark is making considerable mid-winter advertising over the country because Bill Cobble of Detroit played ball here last year. Oscar Stanage and Ty Cobb are declared to be divided as to the policy of Boehler and another of the local Stange is the champion of Boehler. How a Detroit newspaper man handles the subject.

"Bill Wheatley or George Boehler, which one of this pair will be the better pitcher this year?"

"A season will show an interesting duel between two young hurlers. Neither is new to Detroit. Both came during the second of last season and had short stints. To the man in the bleachers Wheatley looked the better of the two."

"They will start this year on even terms, and none will it be Wheatley against Boehler, but the judgment of Ty Cobb against George Stanage. The world's greatest ball player declares Wheatley is the pick of the league's hurlers. The best fruit pitcher he ever saw."

"A man who is a baseball wise, as wise as you and me outside the game, and he would have to stack his judgment against that of Cobb or Stanage. The judge of ball men on this point is a unanimous pick of the league's study is on players. A man who is a baseball wise, as wise as you and me outside the game, and he would have to stack his judgment against that of Cobb or Stanage. The world's greatest ball player declares Wheatley is the pick of the league's hurlers. The best fruit pitcher he ever saw."

LEGISLATURE

A like term of office, for each of other of the courts of record."

He construed this to mean that the constitution authorized the election of a clerk of the supreme court, but not the appointment of that officer. The Democrats made light of the point and tabled the motion. Mr. Reid said he raised the point lest the members of the legislature be called a set of ignoramus should the proposed law be knocked out by the courts.

No attempt was made to reconsider the passage of the bill making the state food commissioner an appointive officer, though some of the farmer members discussed doing so.

Presented by the author the member from Allen, as merely intended to assure the solvency of the 227 private banks in Ohio and to be followed in a year by the enactment of a real regulatory statute, the Kennedy private bank bill was passed by the house yesterday with only two opposing votes. It in effect suspends for one year the constitutional requirement that private banks be inspected.

For one year they may continue to use the word "bank" if they use also the word "unincorporated." At the end of the year they must make such statement as may be required by the state superintendent of banks, who is to license private banks if he finds them solvent.

He is to make annual inspections. Mr. Kennedy declared the first inspection would be in the nature of a survey of private banking conditions, this survey to be the basis of future legislation, as to capitalization and other restrictions now imposed on incorporated banks.

Whether it would be inhuman or humane to extend to 36 hours the law requiring live stock in transit to be unloaded and fed and watered every 24 hours as provided in the Fellingner bill was fiercely debated in the house and then the bill was passed. Representative Kilpatrick of Trumbull charged that Mr. Fellingner of Cleveland represented the shippers and that members of the house who were shippers were speaking for the bill. Mr. Fellingner admitted the shippers were for the bill and also the Cleveland stock yards, but said the state public service commission favored it and that it only made the Ohio law conform to the United States law applicable to interstate commerce.

Mr. Etling of Wayne disclaimed being a shipper and declared the present restriction resulted in stock being held up within a few miles of destination when it would be better for the stock to be carried through without delay. Mr. Guthrey of Marion told of losing 122 out of a shipment of 700 lambs because of this statute. Mr. Lustig of Cleveland charged that the Cleveland Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to animals made arrests merely to get fines.

The Barthelmeh bill, a copy of the first bill signed by Governor Sulzer of New York, making it a misdemeanor for an intoxicated person to drive an automobile, was passed by the house. At the instance of Mr. Vonderheide of Montgomery, the session of the bill making it a felony for an intoxicated chauffeur who caused an accident not to go to the police station and surrender himself was eliminated. Mr. Cappelletti of Hamilton said this provision of the New York law had been held invalid by the courts, as requiring a person to give testimony against himself.

Representative Bigelow of Hamilton told the house that $500,000 had been saved the state by the "patriotism" of newspaper publishers in advertising the constitutional amendments at half the legal rate. His bill appropriating $62,500 for advertising was passed unanimously, as was the Fellingner bill making it a misdemeanor to make an untrue or deceptive statement in an advertisement.

The house passed the Brennan bill making election day a half holiday and for closing the polls everywhere at 5:30 p. m.; the Shenley bill requiring payment of $2 a meeting to members of village and special district school boards; the Horwitz bill transferring to the probate judge the duties of the county blind relief commissioners; the McCormick bill for burial of paupers dying in state institutions by the board of administration and charging the cost to commissioners of the county in which the pauper lived.

Senator Seward of Richland yesterday offered a bill providing for a survey of the educational system of the state in accordance with the suggestions of Governor Cox. A commission of three members would be appointed by the government and report to the next assembly. Members would receive necessary traveling expenses but no compensation. Broad powers of inquiry are given. The bill sets aside $10,000 for the survey.

Senator Jung of Cincinnati yesterday introduced a bill providing for the number of members which may compose a board of education. This is to be determined by referendum vote. The bill is aimed especially at Cincinnati and Dayton, which still have the large number of members that boards of a smaller number may be established.

To the long list of proposed bills against the anti-uter was added yesterday a bill by Senator Beman of Gallia county, who would have the common pleas court license "law-abiding, discreet and sober" persons for one year to carry such weapons, providing he give bond for $1000.

CHAPTER XI. Episodic.

Fortune had immediately returned from the bazaar. And a kind of torpor blanketed her mind, usually so fertile and active. For a time the process of the evolution of thought was denied her; she tried to think, but there was an appalling lack of continuity, of broken threads. It was like one of those circumferential railways; she traveled, but did not get anywhere. Ryann had told her too much for his own sake, but too little for hers. She sat back in the carriage, inert and listless, and indifferently likened her condition to driftwood in the ebb and flow of beach-waves. The color and commotion of the streets were no longer absorbed; it was as if she were riding through emptiness, through the unreality of a dream. She was oppressed and stifled, too; harbingers of storms.

Mechanically she dismissed the carriage at the hotel, mechanically she went to her room, and in this semi-conscious mood sat down in a chair, and there George's wish found her, fully. Oh, there was one thing clear, clear as the sky outside. All was not right; something was wrong; and this wrong upon one side concerned her mother, her uncle and Ryann, and upon the other side, Mr. Jones. Think and think as she might, her endeavors gave her no single illumination. Four blind walls surrounded her. The United Romance and Adventure company—there could not possibly be such a thing in existence; it was a jest of Ryann's to cover up something far more serious.

She pressed her eyes with a hand. They ached dully, the dull pain of bewilderment, which these days recurred with frequency. A sense of time was lacking; for luncheon hour came and passed without her being definitely aware of it. This in itself was a puzzle. A jaunt, such as she had taken that morning, always keened the edge of her appetite; and yet, there was no craving whatever.

Where was her mother? If she would only come now, the cumulative doubts of all these months should be put into speech. They had treated her as one would treat a child; it was neither just nor reasonable. If not as a child, but as one they dared not trust, then they were afraid of her. But why? She pressed her hands together, impatiently. Ryann, clever as he was, had made a slip or two which he had sought to cover up with a jest. Why should he confess himself to be a rogue unless his tongue had got the better of his discretion? If he was a rogue, why should her mother and her uncle make use of him, if not for roguery's sake? They were fools, fools! If they had but seen and understood her as she was, she would have gone to the bitter end with them, loyally, with sealed lips. But no; they had chosen not to see; and in this had morally betrayed her. Ah, it rankled, and the injustice of it grew from pain to fury. At that moment, had she known anything, she certainly would have denounced them. Of what use was loyalty, since none of them sought it in her?

The Major was wiser than he knew when he spoke of the hundredth danger, the danger unforeseen, the danger against which they could make no preparation. And he would have been first to sense the irony of it could he have seen where this danger lay.

Why should they wish the pleasant young man out of the way? Why should Ryann wish to inveigle him into the hands of this man Mahomed? Was it merely self-preservation, or something deeper, more sinister? Think! Why couldn't she think of something? It was only a little pleasure trip to Cairo, they had told her, and when she had asked to go along, they seemed willing enough. But they had come to this hotel, when formerly they had always put up at Shepherd's. And here again the question why? Was it because Mr. Jones was staying here? She liked him, what little she had seen of him. He was out of an altogether different world than that to which she was accustomed. He was neither insensibly mad over cards nor a social idler. He was a young man with a real interest in life, a worker, notwithstanding that he was reputed to be independently rich. And her mother had once borrowed money of him, never intending to pay it back. The shame of it! And why should she approach him the very first day and recall the incident, if not with the ulterior purpose of using him further? As a ball strikes a wall only to rebound to the thrower, so it was with all these questions. There was never any answer.

Tired out, mentally and physically, she laid her head upon the cool top of the stand. And in this position her mother, who had returned to dress for tea, found her. Believing Fortune to be asleep Mrs. Chedsove dropped when the death put him out of range, you had in contemplation it upon me? My father!" Fortune roughly swung aside the arm. "Who knows about him, who he was, what he was, what he looked like? As a child, I used to ask you, but never would you speak. All I know about him nurse told me. This much has always burned my mind: you married him for wealth that he did not have. What do you mean by this simple young man across the corridor?"

Mrs. Chedsove was pale, and the artistic touch of rouge upon her cheeks did not disguise the pallor. The true evidence lay in the whiteness of her nose. Never in her varied life had she felt more helpless, more impotent. To be wild with rage, and yet to be powerless! That alertness of mind, that mental buoyancy, which had always given her the power to return a volley in kind, had deserted her. Moreover, she was distinctly alarmed. This little fool, with a turn of her hand, might send tottering into ruins the skillful planning of months.

"Are you in love with him?" aiming to gain time to regather her scattered thoughts.

"Love?" bitterly. "I am in a fine mood to love any one. My question, my question, my question."

"I refuse absolutely to answer you!" Anger was first to reorganize its forces; and Mrs. Chedsove felt the heat of it run through her veins. But, oddly enough, it was anger directed less toward the child than toward her own palpable folly and oversight.

"Then I shall leave you. I will go out into the world and earn my own bread and butter. Ah, a little brokenly, if you had but given me a little kindness, you do not know how loyal I should have been to you! But no; I am and always have been the child that wasn't wanted."

The despair in the gesture that followed these words stirred the mother's calloused heart, moved it strangely, mysteriously. "My child!" she said impulsively, holding out her hands.

"Certainly, You Are My Daughter."

"No," Fortune drew back. "It is too late."

"Have it so. But you speak of going out into the world to earn your own bread and butter. What do you know about the world? What could you do? You have never done anything but read romantic novels and moon about in the flower-garden. Foolish child! Hark Mr. Jones? Why? For what purpose? I have no more interest in him than if he were one of those mummies over in the museum. And I certainly meant to repay him. I should have done so if you hadn't taken the task upon your own broad shoulders. I am in a hurry. I am going out to Mena House to tea. I've let Celeste off for the day, so please unhook my waist and do not bother your head about Mr. Jones." She turned her back upon her daughter, quite confident that she had for the time suppressed the incipient rebellion. She heard Fortune crossing the room. "What are you doing?" petulantly.

"I am ringing for the hall-maid." And Fortune resumed her chair, picked up her Baedeker, and became apparently absorbed over the map of Assuan.

Again wrath mounted to her mother's head. She could combat anger, ears, protestations; but this indifference, studied and unfeeling, left her weaponless; and she was too wise to unbridle her tongue, much as she longed to do so. She was beaten. Not in agreeable sensation to one who counted only her victories.

"Fortune, later you will be sorry for his spirit," she said, when she felt the tremor of wrath no longer in her breast.

Fortune turned a page, and jotted down some notes with a pencil. Sad as she was at heart, tragic as she knew the result of this outbreak to be, she could hardly repress a smile at the thought of her mother's discomfort.

And so the chasm widened, and went on widening till the end of time. Mrs. Chedsove was glad that the hall-maid knocked and came in just then. It at least saved her the ignominy of a retreat. She dressed, however, with the same deliberate care that she had always used. Nothing ever deranged her sense of proportion relative to her toilet, nothing ever made her forget its importance.

"Good-by dear," she said. "I shall be in at dinner." If the maid had any suspicion that there had been a quarrel, she should at least be impressed with the fact that she, Mrs. Chedsove, was not to blame for it.

Fortune nibbled the end of her pencil. The door closed behind her mother and the maid. She waited for a time. Then she sprang to the window and stood there. She saw her mother driven off. She was dressed in pearls, grey, with a Reynolds hat of grey velvet and sweeping plumes; as handsome and distinguished a woman as could be found that day in all Cairo. The watchman threw her Baedeker, her note-book, and her pencil violently into a corner. It had come to her at last, this thing that she had been striving for since noon. She did not care what the risks were; the storm was too high in her heart to listen to the voice of caution. She would do it; for she judged it the one thing, in justice to her own blood, she must accomplish. She straightway dressed for the street; and if she did not give the same care as her mother to the vital function, she produced an effect that merited comparison.

She loitered before the porter's bureau till she saw him busily engaged in answering questions of some women tourists. Then, with a slight but friendly nod, she stepped into the bureau and stopped before the key-rack.

She hung up her key, but took it down again, as if she had changed her mind. At least, this was the porter's impression as he bowed to her in the midst of the verbal bombardment. Fortune went upstairs. Ten or fifteen minutes elapsed, when she returned, hung up the key, and walked briskly toward the side-entrance at the very moment George, in his fruitless search of her, pushed through the revolving doors in front. And all the time she was wondering how it was that her knees did not give under. It was terrible. She balanced between laughter and tears, hysterically.

She had gone scarcely a hundred yards when she was accosted by a tall Arab whom she indistinctly recollected having seen before; where, she could not definitely imagine. It was the ragged green turban that cleared away her puzzlement. The Arab was the supposed beggar over whom Percival (how easily she had fallen into the habit of calling him that!) had stumbled. He stood so tall and straight that she knew he wasn't going to beg; so naturally she stopped. Without a word, without even a look that expressed anything, he slipped a note into her hand, bowed with Oriental gravity, and stepped aside for her to proceed. She read the note hastily as she continued her way. Horace? Why should he wish to meet her that evening, at the southeast corner of the Shari'a Mahomed-El-Falaki, a step from the British Consulate?

And she mustn't come in a carriage nor tell any one where she was going? Why all such childish mystery? He could see her far more conveniently in the lounge-room of the hotel. She tore the note into scraps and flung them upon the air. She was afraid. She was almost certain why he wished to meet her where neither her mother's nor her uncle's eye would be within range. Should she meet him? Deeper than this, dared she? Why had she come to Cairo, when at Mentone she had known peace, such peace as destiny was generous enough to dole out to her? And now, out of this tolerable peace, a thousand hands were reaching to rend her heart, to wring it. She decided quickly. Since she had come this far, to go on to the end would add but little to her burden. Better to know all too soon than too late.

That the note had not been directed to her and that she was totally unfamiliar with Ryann's handwriting, escaped her. She had too many other things upon her mind to set all things clearly, especially such trifles. She finished her walk, returning by the way she had gone, gave the key to the lift-boy, and in her room dropped down upon the bed, dry-eyed and weary. The most eventful day she had ever known.

And all the while George sat by the window and watched, and at length fell into a frame of mind that was irritable, irascible and self-dramatizing. And when he found that his precious Yliorides was gone, his condition was the essence of all disagreeable emotions. It was beyond him how any one could have stolen it. He never failed to lock his door and leave the key with the porter. And surely, only a man with wings could have gained entrance by the window. Being a thorough business man among other accomplishments, he reported his loss at once to the management; and the management set about the matter with celerity. At half after seven every maid and servant in the hotel had been questioned and examined, without the least noticeable result. The rug was nowhere to be found. George felt the loss keenly. He was not so rich that he could afford to lose both the rug and the thousand pounds he had paid for it. His first thought had been of Ryann; but it was proved that Ryann had not been in the hotel since morning; at least, no one had seen him.

George allowed about. A beastly day, all told, everything had gone wrong, and all because he had over-slept. At dinner something was wrong with the soup; the fish was greasy; the roast was dry and stringy; the wine, full of pieces of cork. Out into the lounge-room again; and then the porter hurried over to him with a note from Ryann. It stated briefly that it was vitally important for Mr. Jones to meet him at nine o'clock at the English-Bar in the Quarter Rossetti. Any driver would show him the way. Mohamed-El-Gebel, the guardian of the Holy Yliorides, had turned up, and the band was beginning to play. Would Mr. Jones like a lift to the bar by the way-side?

"This is my man," said George. "But how the devil did this Mahomed ever get into my room?"

Had Fortune dined downstairs instead of alone in her room, events might have turned out differently. Ryann had really written to George, but not to Fortune.

Mahomed, fatalist that he was, had thrown everything upon the whirling scales of chance, and waited. Later, he may have congratulated himself upon his good luck. But it wasn't luck; it was the will of Allah that he, Mahomed, should contribute his slender share in working out the destinies of two young people.

George was in the proper mood for an adventure. He went so far as to admit to himself that he would have liked nothing better than a fisticuff. The one mistake he made in his calculations was dress. Men didn't generally go a-venturing in such flannel attire. They wore bowlers and sack-coats and carried heavy walking-sticks. The only weapons George had were his two hands, now adorned with snug-fitting opera-gloves.

He saw Mrs. Chedsove, spoke to her, inquired about Fortune, and was informed that she had dined in her room. A case of doldrums, Mrs. Chedsove believed.

"I'm in a peck of trouble," said George, craving a little sympathy.

"In what way?"

"The rug I told you about is gone."

"What? Stolen?"

"Yes. Vanished into thin air."

"That's too bad. Of course the police will eventually find it for you."

"I'm afraid that's exactly the trouble. I really haven't put the case in the hands of the police."

"Oh, I see," Mrs. Chedsove looked profoundly sorry.

"And here I am due for Port Said tomorrow."

"That's the kind that bowls you over," said the Major. "If there is anything I can do after you are gone."

"Oh, I shouldn't think of bothering you. Thanks, though."

"You must have lost your key," suggested Mrs. Chedsove.

"No. It's been hanging up in the porter's bureau all day."

"Well, I hope you find the rug," said the Major, with a sly glance at his sister.

"Thanks. I must be off. The chap I bought it of says that the official guardian from Bagdad has arrived, and that there's likely to be some sport. I'm to meet him at a place called the English-Bar."

"The English-Bar?" The Major shook his head. "A low place, if I remember."

"And you are going dressed like that?" asked Mrs. Chedsove.

"Haven't time to change." He excused himself and went in search of a carriage.

"The play begins, Kate," whispered the Major. "This Hoddie of ours is a wonderful chap."

"Poor fellow!"

"What? Hoddie?"

"No; Percival. He'll be very uncomfortable in patent-leather pumps. The Major laughed light-heartedly.

"I suppose we might telegraph for reservation on the Ludwig."

"I shall pack at once. Fortune can find her way to Mentone from Naples. I am beginning to worry about that girl. She has a temper; and she is beginning to have some ideas."

"Marry her, marry her! How much longer must I preach that sermon? She's growing handsomer every day, too. Watch your laurels, Kate."

Mrs. Chedsove inspected her rings. Meanwhile, George directed his driver to go post-haste to the English-Bar. That he found it more or less of a dive in nowise alarmed him. He had been in places of more frightful aspect. As Ryann had written him to make inquiries of the barmaid relative to finding him, he did so. She jerked her head toward the door at the rear. George went boldly to it, opened it, and stepped inside.

And vanished from the haunts of men.

Most of us mean what we say, when we say it.

Healthy Baby Is Precious Blessing

To Make It Healthy and Keep It Healthy, Use a Reliable Baby Laxative.

In spite of the greatest personal care and the most intelligent attention to diet, babies and children will become constipated, and it is a fact that constipation and indigestion have wrecked many a young life. To start with a good digestive apparatus is to start life without handicap.

But as we cannot all have perfect working bowels we must do the next best thing and acquire them, or train them to become healthy. This can be done by the use of a Laxative- tonic very highly recommended by a great many mothers. The remedy is called Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and has been on the market for two generations. It can be bought conveniently at any drug store for fifty cents or one dollar a bottle, and those who are already convinced of its merits buy the dollar size.

Its mildness makes it the ideal medicine for children, and it is also very pleasant to the taste. It is sure in its effect and genuinely harmless. Very little of it is required and its frequent use does not cause it to lose its effect, as is the case with so many other remedies.

Thousands can testify to its merits in constipation, indigestion, biliousness, sick headaches, etc., among them reliable people like Mrs. M. Johnson, 732 Dayton street, Kenosha, Wis. She is the mother of little Dorothy Johnson who was always in delicate health until her mother gave her Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Mrs. Johnson ever used Syrup Pepsin and you would like to make a personal trial of it before buying it in the regular way of a druggist, send your address—a postal will do—to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 417 Washington street, Monticello, Ill., and a free sample bottle will be mailed you.

BUCKEYE LAKE TARS' ANNUAL MESS IS HELD

Newark Men Attend Novel Banquet Given by Yacht Club in Columbus Thursday Night.

With full rig set and a jolly wind blowing white-caps on a rippling "sea" 200 tars of the Buckeye Lake Yacht Club and their guests laid to at the Hartman Hotel in Columbus last night where the eighth annual dinner was served. Salt horse, jerked, was the piece de resistance as land lubbers would call it, and the whole menu smacked of terms and names, nautical and well known to inland sailors.

Commodore Thomas Webb of Peoria, Ill., formerly of the Buckeye Lake Club, added a brass starting cannon to the club's equipment. It was discovered last night in the hold of a yacht dry docked in a corner of the mess deck and Harry Shephard for Mr. Webb appropriated it to the club. Commodore Harry D. Freeman acknowledged its receipt.

Yarns about members of the club and incidents which have happened at the club's regattas were unraveled by two of the yachtsmen on the bow of the craft in the banquet hall. While thus engaged four pirates who had stowed themselves in the hold came on deck, captured and bound the crew and then sang in honor of their victory. The pirates were the members of the "Monkeys' Next" quartet and their entertainment was natty.

Besides the quartet music, other splendid numbers were sung by Mrs. Herbert A. Patton, Hugh K. Lindsay and Arthur E. Shannon. There were many prominent guests present, including Governor Cox and other state officials.

The guests from Newark were J. P. Cherry, Frank Chase, George Phipps, Dr. H. H. Baker, Dr. J. T. Lewis, James Haynes and E. C. Bricker.

AFTER FIVE YEARS

Winthrop Child Was Restored to Health by Vinol.

"Five years ago our little girl had a severe attack of diphtheria which left her subject to bronchitis and stomach trouble. She has been almost constantly under medical treatment. I have also tried two or three remedies containing cod liver oil but found her stomach rebelled against the oil. Reading your description of Vinol I decided to try it and did so with most astonishing results. I cannot begin to tell you how she has improved because you do not know what a little sufferer she was for five years. She has gained ten pounds since she commenced to take Vinol, and the story of what Vinol has done for her is only half told in this letter." Mrs. Adelaide Mulloy, Winthrop, Mass.

Vinol contains all the healing curative properties of cod liver oil without the oil and tonic iron added. That is why it helped this little girl after other remedies had failed.

We ask mothers of weak, sickly children to try Vinol on our offer to give back your money if it fails to help them. Frank D. Hall, druggist, Newark, Ohio.

AMUSEMENTS
THE AUDITORIUM
Newark had her season of grand opera Thursday, and although it was
a short one it was artistically a pre-
eminent success, and the Newark
lovers of this higher class of musical inspiration and composition had
the good fortune to hear a most worthy interpretation of two works that
are models of widely different musical construction. The Aborn English Grand Opera Company is a
most capable organization and its
forces are well fortified with artists
who appreciate the demands made upon them in this field and rise to the occasion.
To the women of the company
must go the credit of unstinted
praise for the work done in both the
matinee and evening performances
as they appear to add to a splendid vocal equipment a keen historical
appreciation of the work being sung,
and show genuine musicianship in
the interpretation of the roles assigned them. The men of the company do not compare in the latter
respect to the female contingent, although their voices are without exception far above the average in tonal quality.
The afternoon offering was Puccini's weird, oriental tragedy, "Madame Butterfly," and the singing of the title role was a veritable triumph
for Miss Elena Kirmes. This young
woman's performance Thursday afternoon under all the circumstances
was nothing short of remarkable,
and is surely deserving of especial
mention.
She is possessed of a soprano
voice of good power, wide range and
very pleasing quality, to which she adds a charming personality and
dramatic conception of a high order.
The part of Cho-Cho-San (Madame Butterfly) is one of the most technically difficult in the realm of opera, and is especially trying to the physical powers of the performer.
The long series of notes in constant
vocal strain, the harmony is exasperating, and sustained in a heavy minor
almost throughout the entire act,
which would surely tire the ear and
draw out to tediousness were the voice
to be essayed by any but a most intelligent, painstaking and thorough artist.
Puccini has woven into his score
a temperamental subtlety which
takes hold of and almost transports
the hearer. When the revelation is made that the girl is a foreigner,
the sentiments of remorse, doubt, grief,
revenge and final despair, every one
of which requires its personal note.
Musically this is achieved in a large measure by the use of orchestration, which at times approaches subtlety, but it is also all
the characterization of the stage
which makes its deepest appeal.
Now for Miss Kirmes' performance
in the opera Thursday afternoon. She was notified in New York by the manager that Miss Ada Hopper had been taken ill Tuesday night and would have to go to Newark as Miss Butterfly for Manager R. H. Bell, who is the manager with the company.
That was a terrible misfortune,
morning and a week's work, the first train west, arriving in Newark on Thursday morning before the company arrived from Baltimore.
She had sung other roles in the Aborn Spring companies, but had
never sung the role of "Madame Butterfly" in English, but with-
standing this seemingly insurmount-
able handicap, without a single rehearsal with the orchestra she was on, sang the role in Italian and scored a triumph. She was hugged
by the other women members of the company and congratulated by the
manager in a less demonstrative,
though not less sincere manner.
"Il Trovatore," Verdi's immortal
masterpiece, was the evening offering with an entire change of cast,
and a much larger audience heard

this opera, which was more familiar to Newark than "Butterfly."
The prima donna, Miss Panetta Albina was situated in the beautiful characterization of Leonora, being in excellent voice and singing a part of which she has mastered the slightest detail of vocal phrasing as well as dramatic technique. Honors were equally shared with her by Elaine De Bellum, whose characterization of Adelia, the gypsy mother, was in every way most pleasing and satisfying.
Harry May and Leo's (Manolo) duet, "The Song of the Lullaby," was a most excellent duet, and showed the excellent vocal quality and a high degree of training.
The vocalists, Miss Albina, Miss Panetta, and Leo's, were all of a high caliber, and the orchestra, under the direction of the conductor, was of a high caliber, and the production was a most excellent one.

lent one, and the production was a

"Mutt and Jeff"
The comedy duo of Mutt and Jeff were in the audience, and the production was a most excellent one.

Kirk Brown Next Week.
Kirk Brown, supported by Miss Margaret Fields and a capable company of players, will begin a week's engagement at the Auditorium Monday afternoon.
The appearance of Mr. Brown and company at this theatre is an entirely new line of the late successes produced by any popular theatrical attraction. Manager Johnson has the assurance that Kirk Brown and his productions are stronger in every detail than on any previous visit to this city. Mr. Brown's leading support, Miss Fields, is said to be an actress of charming personality, having gained her early successes with the late Richard Manfield. Both with the strong supporting company will be seen tomorrow week in a series of "Incesses." The Wilsons will be presented at Monday's matinee, and for the evening the play will be "Ra-phael the Amateur Cracksman."
The prices during the engagement of Mr. Brown and his company will be: Matinee, 10 and 20 cents; evening, 10, 20 and 30 cents. Orders are now on sale.

Ladies will be admitted free to each at the matinee and evening performances Monday if reserved before the limit on same expires.
The Orpheum.
The same company that played at the Orpheum for the first three days of the week was held over for the last half and produced an entirely new play, a musical comedy in one act, entitled "My Friend Hogan."
The scene is a roof garden in New York city and many new songs are introduced and many funny sayings
by Messrs. Richardson and Niner the two clever comedians, playing the Boys from Ireland—and they surely got many good laughs. Spectacles are introduced by Ray and Dorless in songs and dances.
Tenny and Allen are trick and fancy jugglers and dancers and arrive clever in every way.
Miss Noble Darby and Norman Hansen furnish many good singing numbers and a good portion of the clothes the performance, making a clever show. The prices will remain the same, 10 and 20 cents. Orders seats 50¢ per box.

Commencing Monday, Feb. 3 at the Orpheum, Arthur Harris will present his Pan Dandy girls in the musical comedy tabloid, "No Man's Land." A clever cast will present this play and we are assured it will please our patrons.

Puccini has woven into his score
a temperamental subtlety which
takes hold of and almost transports
the hearer. When the revelation is
made that the girl is a foreigner,
the sentiments of remorse, doubt, grief,
revenge and final despair, every one
of which requires its personal note.
Musically this is achieved in a
large measure by the use of orchestration, which at times ap-
proaches subtlety, but it is also all
the characterization of the stage
which makes its deepest appeal.
Now for Miss Kirmes' performance
in the opera Thursday afternoon. She was notified in New York by the manager that Miss Ada Hopper had been
taken ill Tuesday night and would have to go to Newark as Miss Butterfly for Manager R. H. Bell, who is the manager with the company.
That was a terrible misfortune,
morning and a week's work, the first
train west, arriving in Newark on Thursday morning before the company arrived from Baltimore.
She had sung other roles in the Aborn Spring companies, but had
never sung the role of "Madame Butterfly" in English, but with-
standing this seemingly insurmount-
able handicap, without a single rehearsal with the orchestra she was
on, sang the role in Italian and
scored a triumph. She was hugged
by the other women members of the company and congratulated by the
manager in a less demonstrative,
though not less sincere manner.
"Il Trovatore," Verdi's immortal
masterpiece, was the evening offering with an entire change of cast,
and a much larger audience heard

Newark had her season of grand
opera Thursday, and although it was
a short one it was artistically a pre-
eminent success, and the Newark
lovers of this higher class of musical
inspiration and composition had
the good fortune to hear a most
worthy interpretation of two works that
are models of widely different musical construction. The Aborn English Grand Opera Company is a
most capable organization and its
forces are well fortified with artists
who appreciate the demands made
upon them in this field and rise to
the occasion.
To the women of the company
must go the credit of unstinted
praise for the work done in both the
matinee and evening performances
as they appear to add to a splendid
vocal equipment a keen historical
appreciation of the work being sung,
and show genuine musicianship in
the interpretation of the roles assigned them. The men of the company do not compare in the latter
respect to the female contingent, although their voices are without exception far above the average in
tonal quality.
The afternoon offering was Puc-
cini's weird, oriental tragedy, "Madame Butterfly," and the singing of
the title role was a veritable triumph
for Miss Elena Kirmes. This young
woman's performance Thursday afternoon under all the circumstances
was nothing short of remarkable,
and is surely deserving of especial
mention.
She is possessed of a soprano
voice of good power, wide range and
very pleasing quality, to which she
adds a charming personality and
dramatic conception of a high order.
The part of Cho-Cho-San (Madame Butterfly) is one of the most techni-
cally difficult in the realm of oper-
a, and is especially trying to the
physical powers of the performer.
The long series of notes in constant
vocal strain, the harmony is exaspe-

almost throughout the entire act,
which would surely tire the ear and
draw out to tediousness were the voice
to be essayed by any but a most intelli-

SOCIETY

The Alpha Nu Sigma fraternity of Granville last evening entertained with a most delightful dinner party at their frat house, and a box party at the Auditorium, hearing the grand opera Il Trovatore.

The club house was prettily decorated with shades of old rose and pink. In the dining room a large cluster of pink roses centered the table. These were surrounded by a garland of sweet peas, made up of concise bouquets, which were attached to the place cards of the young lady guests, by dainty pink ribbons.

Following was the party, championed by Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Pence, Miss Clara Davies, Miss Leontine Moore, Miss Helen Baker, Miss Josephine Hilliard, Miss Ruth Thomas, Miss Lillian Pence, Miss Carrie Hawkey, Miss Horrick, Miss Ethel Voorhees, Mr. Paul Clark, Mr. Max Barclain, Mr. William Hoffman, Mr. W. B. White, Mr. Eugene Flory, Mr. Wayne Overturn, Mr. W. J. Currin, Mr. Swanson, Mr. Parker Hill.

Mr. C. O. Burke entertained at a stag party at his apartments in the Arcade flats Wednesday evening. The guests were entertained at cards and music, the latter being furnished by Messrs. Harry Frederick and Claude Greco of Columbus, professionals on guitar and mandolin. Mr. Gene Schlegel gave several recitations, Mr. Burke delivered a Kipling poem, and Mr. William Hinger sang several diatonic melodies. An excellent three-course luncheon was served.

Relatives of Mrs. Frank Zahner of Park avenue, gave her a surprise, honoring her birthday anniversary last evening. Music and games formed the interesting part of the evening.

A two-course supper was served the following: Messrs. and Mesdames Frank Zahner, Martin Luther, Nick Snyder, Mr. August Moser, Mr. Joe Moser, Mrs. John Richard, Mrs. Henry Jones, Mrs. Hank Moser, Miss Della Moser, Miss Eva Richardson, Miss Florence Jones, Miss Helen Snyder, Miss Bessie Jones, Miss Pauline Snyder, and Master William Snyder.

Mrs. Sunderland entertained the Art Embroidery club at her home in First street, Wednesday afternoon. After several hours of needle work and social conversation a dainty repast was served by the hostess.

The club will meet again at the home of Mrs. Will Dwyer in Kipler avenue on Wednesday, February 12. Each member will kindly bring a valentine for the valentine box the same as they did a year ago.

Mrs. W. E. Fulton entertained the Reading and Sewing club at her home 51 Union street, Thursday. The time was spent in sewing and sociality, followed by the election of officers. President, Mrs. C. L. V. Heinz; secretary, L. H. Fleming; treasurer, Mrs. Charles Stewart.

A reception was served the members and guests, Mrs. J. G. Bower and Mrs. G. W. Bourne.

The Alfretha club will dance at Assembly hall tonight from 8 to 12 o'clock.

Miss Louise Jones Thursday entertained the following company of girls composing her sewing club: Mrs. Lee Moore, Mrs. Jay Cooper, Mrs. Carl Swisher, Misses Katherine Sedgwick, Eleanor Decker, Rhea Under, Mary Madelon and Florence Haag.

Over seventy-five were present at the Euchre party given last night by the Knights of Columbus at their rooms in Second street. The prizes for the evening were given Mrs. Thomas Egan, Mrs. John McCabe, Mr. Ed. O'Neill and Mr. John Sedgwick.

Refreshments were served later in the evening.

Miss Ada Pletcher of Pine street royally entertained the members of the B. B. D. club at her home last evening. All members were present. After a number of stitches had been taken an elaborate dinner was served.

Miss Magdalene Reichert of Harrison street, entertained about twenty of her friends last evening in honor of her nineteenth birthday anniversary. During the course of the evening games were enjoyed by all and at a late hour refreshments were served.

Mrs. W. K. Ralston of Buena Vista street entertained with a birthday party in honor of her daughter, Maxine's eleventh anniversary. About twelve little folks were present and enjoyed an afternoon from 3:30 to 5:30 of games of various description.

A Mid-winter Rest

JUST about now most of us are beginning to feel, and perhaps to show through the medium of rasped nerves, the strain of the season. Whether we are a society butterfly, the pace during the winter month or so, has been fast and furious. And it has told on many of us. We feel tired. Life has lost its savor. We wake in the morning unrefreshed, and think what wouldn't we give to be able to lie longer and rest. But the thought of duties pressing is already sending us, and we crawl out and languidly go to our tasks.

But this is not the way to live life, if it can be helped. And with many of us a very simple remedy is right at hand, if we will pluck up resolution enough to take it. And this medicine, that will once more give us appetite for the duties at hand, is a little holiday.

Nearly everybody nowadays takes a vacation in the summer. But many need a vacation in mid-winter.

The mid-winter vacation need not assume the proportion or importance of the summer holiday. With many this would be impossible, and to undertake to do it in this way would simply mean it must be cut out altogether. But some little change or outing, if only a week-end, could be taken by many. And it is decidedly worth while.

To run off to the shore or to some restful inland resort for a week-end will do wonders in changing one's outlook on life, when one has dropped in to the "life-worth-living" attitude. The business man or woman, especially needs this change; but so also does the mistress of the home, tied to a monotonous round and many little irritating cares.

The English are much ahead of us in this understanding of the value of these little resting and relaxing spells. They are a week-end nation. And they are a big, hearty, calm people compared to the hurrying and hurried American.

One should not make a burden of such a trip. One should simply take what one has in the way of wearing apparel, throw care to the winds, and go off and play.

And if we will do this, when we come back, what was difficult will be easy, and what seemed a mountain of work will be only a molehill. It will be good to be alive, and we can face each day with good relish for the duties that wait.

And if a little holiday can bring this about, will it not pay to take it?

PLUMP FOLKS AND THIN FOLKS.

Samose Will Make People Fat. "Money Back if It Fails." Say W. A. Erman & Son.

The line of beauty is a curve. Women may be thin and graceful, but not thin and beautiful. There is a vast number of pale, thin, scrawny people who are all brains and nerves, but without the strength and health that accompanies the standard weight. Good flesh and perfect health go together. A true flesh forming food like Samose is absolutely necessary to many people.

This remarkable discovery comes in tablet form and when taken after meals mingles with the food and helps it to assimilate so that it makes rich blood and pleasing plumpness.

W. A. Erman & Son have so much confidence in this remarkable flesh forming food and health restorer that they are willing and glad to allow any customer to deposit 50 cents with them and take home a box of Samose with the understanding that if it does not give a marked increase in good firm flesh the money will be returned without any questions.

Many a man who chokes over a fish bone will swallow a fish story without any inconvenience.

"Pape's Diapepsin" Settles Upset Stomachs and Ends Indigestion in Five Minutes.

Do some foods you eat hit back—taste good, but work badly; ferment into stubborn lumps and cause a sick, sour, gassy stomach? Now, Mr. or Mrs. Dyspeptic for this down: Pape's Diapepsin digests everything, leaving nothing to sour and upset you. There never was anything so safely quick, so certainly effective. No difference how badly your stomach is disordered you will get happy relief in five minutes, but what pleases you most is that it strengthens and regulates your stomach so you can eat your favorite foods without fear.

Most remedies give you relief sometimes—they are slow, but not sure. Diapepsin is quick, positive and puts your stomach in a healthy condition so the misery won't come back.

You feel different as soon as Diapepsin comes in contact with the stomach—distress just vanishes—your stomach gets sweet, no gases, no belching, no eructations of undigested food, your head clears and you feel fine.

Go now, make the best investment you ever made by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder.

It isn't every one who can nail a lie without hitting his own fingers.

The fellow who is addicted to poker dice is always a great hand-shaker.

None are so blind as those who profess to see our faults.

THE GREAT COUGH-CURE

+++++ Quarter Century Ago +++++

(From Advocate, Jan. 31, 1888.)

Mr. Charles E. Smith of Pittsburg, has been staying with A. Clark Kane for the last few days. Mr. Smith travels for the Pussey & Kerr's wholesale house.

Henry C. Cochran of North Fourth street left this morning for Kansas City, Mo., where he will engage in the study of law.

The handsome new Catholic school building will be occupied tomorrow for the first time.

W. D. Lee left last night for a trip East.

Fifty Years Ago Today.
Jan. 31.

The Confederate army had rams Chittora and Palmetto State made a desperate attack upon the Federal blockading fleet off Charleston harbor. The Federal ship Merrimack surrendered, and the Keystone State was twice disabled from offering resistance. The rams retired leisurely from the fight, claiming to have smashed the blockade. An official announcement to that effect was issued from Confederate headquarters in Charleston.

Twenty-five Years Ago Today.

The joint commission on Newfoundland fisheries reached an agreement.

Skunk Season Closes.
Saturday the season for catching skunks closes. Anyone caught trapping or digging out skunks after that time may be severely dealt with. The skunk is a very valuable asset to the farmer. In fact, more so than the average countryman understands.

The state department has slowly awakened to the fact and as a result skunks will have a season in the future the same as other game.

 THE BIRTHDAY CALENDAR. *****

January 31

Good fortune is yours and a pleasant and successful journey is foretold for you. If in employ, your services will be recognized and rewarded.

Those born today will be fortunate and will advance after early youth. They will have minds of a scientific turn and will need careful instruction in the care of their health and in everyday conduct.

"The High Road."

Mrs. Piske's illustration of youth in Part I. of "The High Road" is said to be marvelous in its every detail of voice, movement, bearing, speech and atmosphere. Artistically it is considered to be one of the most striking things she has ever contributed to any characterization.

Some fellows could run through a fortune without even getting out of breath.

If we could see ourselves as others see us most of us would make a bee line for the oculist's.

The bore is not necessarily a person of deep penetration.

WAKE UP WITH A SICK HEADACHE?

You're Bilitious! Constive! Liver and Bowels Clogged—Listen to Me— Feel Just Dandy Tomorrow.

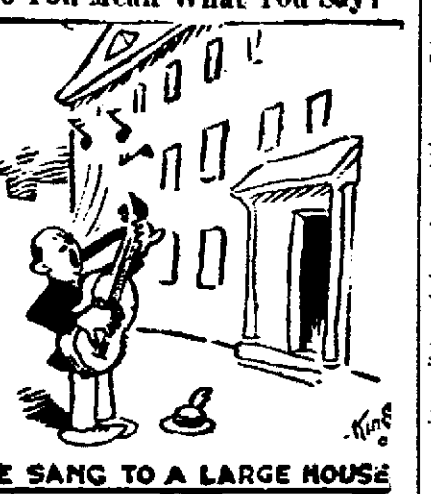

YOU'LL LOVE "VEGETS." ONLY A PENNY A DOSE

"Vegets" will move your bowels and clean your liver so smoothly you won't realize they were acting until morning when all the liver poison, bile, foul gases, indigestible matter and constipated waste gently moves on and out of your 30 feet of bowels.

Take "Vegets" tonight, and wake up clear as a bell; no sick headache, sour stomach, gas, indigestion, tired breath, bad taste, jaundiced eyes, salivaceous, dizziness, thinness or constipation.

"Vegets" are tiny, dairy, "inside cleansers," easy to take, contain no calomel, but made entirely from extracts of vegetables, therefore harmless as food.

Get a small box of "Vegets" from any drug store. They cause no inconvenience, no griping, no distress or annoyance all day like most other laxatives and cathartics.

HE SANG TO A LARGE HOUSE

CROP ROTATION ADVISED BY THE STATE EXPERTS

Crop rotation as a means of preventing the spread of many diseases which are now resulting in decreased forage and field crops for Ohio farmers was advocated a few days ago in a lecture by A. D. Selby, chief of the Department of Botany of the Ohio Experiment Station, before the College of Agriculture of Ohio State University. The biologist based his statements upon information gained from experiments in this state, and expressed the belief that if farmers persist in continuous cropping of their fields, many of our now successful crops will become practically unknown in a very few years. He attributes many of the diseases Ohio farmers experience in connection with their corn and small grain crops to steady cultivation of but one crop in a field, and by a process of soil infection, induced through the planting of possibly infected seed, the yield is substantially diminished.

"We Americans are the worst violators of the laws of good agriculture," declared the experiment station chief. "We are too fond of replanting a crop that has made good in one season, without giving thought to the possibility of the spread of plant diseases. Besides the necessity of conserving the fertility of Ohio's soil, the spread of plant diseases must also be remembered. Proper rotation of crops will do much toward the elimination of the bacterial and fungus diseases which at present infest Ohio crops, particularly the scab diseases of several of the grains, the dry rot and ear mold of corn and some of the clover and alfalfa diseases.

Diseases of the turnip and rape, especially the black rot which is much the same as that which gives trouble to cabbage growers of the state, can be greatly aided by the adaptation of proper rotation, claims Mr. Selby. He would also give attention to the sugar beet industry of the state, claiming that present conditions necessitate some systematic treatment for the leaf spot disease or there will be a sugar beet crop in Ohio in a few years.

Information relative to the curing of forage and field crop diseases may be obtained through the College of Agriculture.

NOT A TWINGE OF RHEUMATISM SINCE TAKING RHEUMA

"I suffered for six years, tried with no relief, to try RHEUMA. I have taken a bottle and am entirely free from the disease. I was sleep night; now I sleep well, perfectly." P. W. Miller, Canawissa, Pa.

"For 14 months I was so badly afflicted with Rheumatism that much of the time I was obliged to use a cane. I used a bottle of RHEUMA and THE CANE IN THE CORNER NOW. No one would be happier to be rid of the swollen knees and badly swollen ankles. I certainly believe there is no remedy for the disease like RHEUMA." Mrs. Daniel S. Knox, Lawrence, N. Y., Aug. 8, 1912

Evans Drug Store guarantees RHEUMA to cure Rheumatism, Gout, Lumbago, Sciatic Arthritis, Chronic Neuritis and Kidney disease or money back—and only 50 cents a bottle.

ROBINSON HUNTER, Probate Judge.

He Got a Seat in the Gallery.
After keeping it locked in his bosom for several seasons, Carter De Haven, who is starring in A. H. Woods' latest offering, Exceeding the Speed Limit, and which comes to Auditorium theatre Monday evening, Feb. 1, is telling his one:

In a southern city some four or five years ago, and one night as I was about to enter the theatre I saw an aged negro gazing into the lobby with rapt admiration.

"How would you like to see the show?" I asked the darkey.

"Ded, boss," he answered, "I've got a good dawg home dat I'd give for a ticket."

"I secured him a seat in the gallery, and, trembling with joy, the old fellow passed in. The next night the same negro was again standing outside the theatre.

"Well, how did you like the play?" was my question.

"It's dis way boss, de show wuz all right, but I use mighty glad dat I kept mah dawg."

OBITUARY

JOSEPH DAVIS.

Joseph Davis, aged 81 years, died at his home, 22 North Pine street, at 11:10 o'clock Thursday night after an illness of only three days with bronchial trouble, although he had not been in the best of health for some time past.

The remains were taken to the old home farm, four and a half miles south of Newark on the Jacksonville road, and the funeral will take place Sunday morning from the Fairmount church, in which the deceased had served for many years as a deacon. The funeral will leave the house at 10 o'clock.

The death of Mr. Davis is the first one to occur in the family for over fifty-four years, when he was married, and neither had the grim reaper garnered from the families of the children.

Mr. Davis seemed to realize that his time was short, and had chosen the men he wished to act as pallbearers, and also the minister whom he wished to conduct the funeral services.

The widow and three sons, James and Dr. H. J. Davis of Newark, and C. Frank Davis, who lives on the home place, and two grand children are left.

Mrs. Louis A. Martin of near Kirkersville, who was reared by Mr. and Mrs. Davis and was like a daughter to them, and her four children, also survive.

Joseph Davis was a well known farmer of Licking township, and was the son of James Davis, who came to Licking county in 1806 from Virginia with his parents, settling near the present city water works site. In 1807 the family moved to a farm a mile west of Jacksonville, where they lived for about a year. After James Davis' marriage to Susan Grove, he settled on a farm where Joseph Davis was born in 1832 and all of his useful life was spent in Licking county. He received such an education as was afforded in the old log school houses near the farm, but was a great reader, and perused many volumes from which he absorbed knowledge of various things so that he was accounted one of the best read men in his section of the county.

On September 3, 1858, the deceased was married to Miss Helen Sutton, also a native of this county, and the three children born of this union still survive.

Mr. Davis was a Democrat in politics and has served on the school board of his township and for many years was a trustee.

Mr. Davis was a good man whose long life of uprightness has been of great benefit to the community and he was looked upon by all his neighbors as a man deserving of the highest respect.

MRS. KATHERYN MORRISON.

Mrs. Kathryn Morrison, aged 69 years, died Thursday night at her home, 20 North Arch street, death occurring at 7:40 o'clock. Her death was unexpected and was due to an attack of paralysis, though she had been in ill health for several years. Mrs. Morrison was born in Muskingum county Nov. 2, 1843. She came to Newark about 20 years ago and has lived here most of the time since. She leaves one brother, Eli Borders of 129 North Fourth street, and two sisters, Mrs. Harry Fisher of South Zanesville, and Mrs. J. H. Mangold of Sierra Madre, California.

The body was removed from her home to the undertaking parlors of Bazler and Bradley where it was prepared for burial and later it was removed to the home of Mr. Borders in Fourth street. It will be taken to Sonora, Muskingum county, Sunday morning for funeral services. Interment in Bowers cemetery.

FUNERAL OF MOSES PERREAU.

The funeral of Moses Perreault, who died Wednesday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Charles Perry of North avenue, will be held at the church of the Blessed Sacrament, Saturday morning at 7:45 o'clock.

MRS. LYONS' FUNERAL.

The funeral of Mrs. W. E. Lyons, who died yesterday morning, will be held Saturday morning at 10 o'clock at St. Francis de Sales church. Interment at Mt. Calvary cemetery.

GROUND HOG IS READY FOR ANNUAL TEST

Lookout for a cold wave. The forecast today promises a big drop in temperature tonight and still colder weather for Saturday with high winds. There will be no snowfall on Saturday, according to the prognosticators, but you'll need your ear muffs and pulse warmers. Bear heat the soup-stones tonight and be prepared.

February will arrive tomorrow, on Sunday, and the ground hogs will stretch and yawn and mosey out of their winter quarters for a look at the weather. For several days, weather prophets have been guessing what the ground hogs' decision will be.

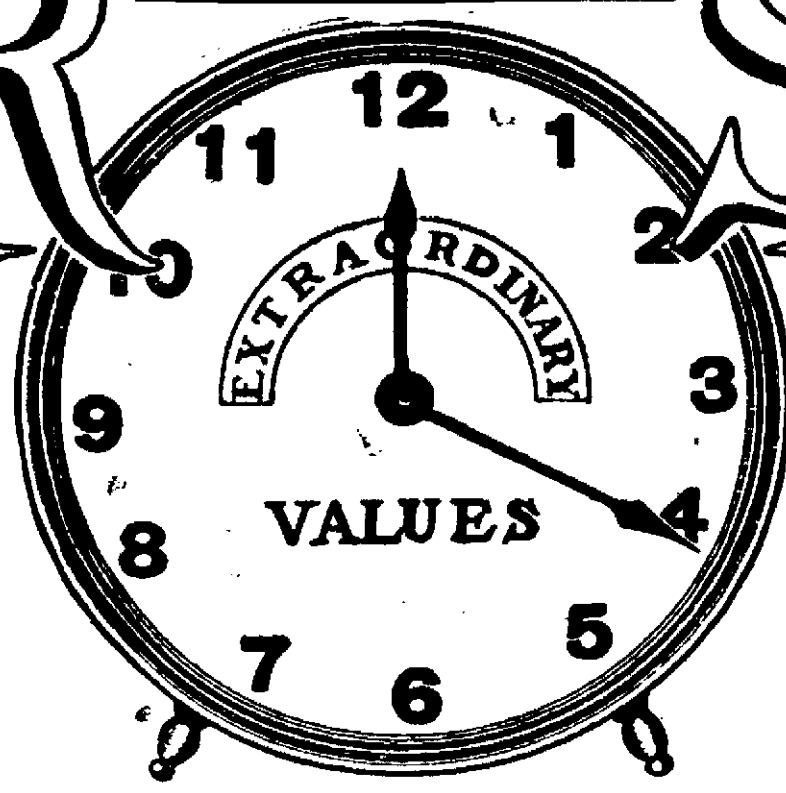

The government weather service is unusually busy right now, not only to have the public say too much attention to the predictions of G. G. Hogg. This morning the man at the column has been promised colder weather before night. He also promises a warmer for Saturday, but says it will be much colder with a cold wind from the west. Apparently he is waiting to see how near he comes on the Saturday weather before he makes any pronouncement for Sunday.

Friday and continued until about 11:15 a. m. when it turned into a snow which continued more or less throughout the morning with a gradual drop in temperature.

Many a man's ambition extends no farther than to be known as a good fellow.

FORMER NEWARK EPILEPTIC IS AGAIN DEMENTED

From reading newspaper accounts of the fire last week at the Burdell couch factory in Broad street, Columbus, Isaac Bonman, aged 29, son of George Bonman, a railway employee, imagined that he had rescued the three girls who were forced to jump into the Scioto river. The youth, who was released about a year ago from the Epileptic Hospital at Columbus, having been sent there by Judge M. P. Brister, in January, 1910, called on all of the girls representing that he was a sub-Indian and had greatly endangered his life, besides snuffing his clothes when he drew them out of the water.

TODAY IN PUGILISTIC ANNALS.

1888—Jack Dempsey defeated Dominick McCaffery in 10 rounds at Jersey City.

1905—Ray Bronson and Young Sharkey fought a 10-round draw at Indianapolis.

1910—Leach Cross outpointed Frankie Madden in 10 rounds at Brooklyn.

1911—Frank Klaus and Jimmy Gardner fought 12-round draw at Boston.

1911—Young Britt defeated Monte Attell in 15 rounds at Baltimore.

1912—Tommy Murphy and One Round Hogan fought 20-round draw at San Francisco.

YOUNG SICKLES SAVS FATHER IS DEEPLY IN DEBT

New York, Jan. 30.—Station Six, of the New York Herald Tribune, has a sensational story from a confidential source that a young man, who is a member of the New York Stock Exchange, has been discovered to be a heavy gambler. The story is that the young man, who is a member of the New York Stock Exchange, has been discovered to be a heavy gambler. BACKACHE A WARNING ALL SHOULD HEED

It is one of the first signs of kidney trouble—if neglected, serious diseases follow.

No one can be well and healthy unless the kidneys work properly and keep the blood pure. When they become clogged up and inactive, there is a way of warning you. Backache is one of the first signs. You may also be troubled with disagreeable urinating. Urinary troubles have attacks of burning or stinging, become nervous, tired and feel all worn-out. Pain in the back and under the eyes or in the feet and ankles and many other symptoms are noticed. If they are neglected, dropsy, diabetes, or Bright's disease, which so often prove fatal, may result.

It is not only dangerous, but needless for you to suffer and endure the tortures of these troubles, for the new discovery, Croxone, quickly and surely ends all such misery. There is no more effective remedy known for the prompt cure of all urinary troubles than this new, scientific preparation, because it removes the cause. It soaks right into the kidneys, through the walls and arteries, cleans out the clogged passages, neutralizes and dissolves the poisonous uric acid and waste matter that lodge in the joints and cause those terrible rheumatic pains, and makes the kidneys filter and secrete the poison out of the blood and drive it from the system.

You will find Croxone different from all other remedies. There is nothing else on earth like it. It is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results.

You can secure an original package of Croxone at trifling cost from any first class drug store. All druggists are authorized to personally return the purchase price of Croxone should fail in a single case. Three doses a day for a few days is often all that is ever needed to cure the worst backache, relieve rheumatic pains, or overcome urinary disorders.

NEGRESS HELD FOR ROBBING FRANK GRAFF

NEW PUBLICATIONS

In 1932 Number 1932, Five a Day, But 1930 Suspended Publication During Year.

Philadelphia, Jan. 21.—New publications and literature during 1931 at the rate of about five a day, according to editors here compiled by the 1931 American Newspaper Annual and Directory, published here today. The annual number began to rise in the same period last year, although making the net in case for the year by about equally divided between the United States and Canada. As in recent years, there were many consolidations. The publishing and printing industry, which the Annual and Directory represents, is one that is number of employees, value of products, and value added by manufacturing, is expected to be fairly good in 1932. The main of our country's manufacturing. The increase in value of output in this industry is remarkable. In 1931 it was more than 50 per cent. The annual income of newspapers and magazines is now estimated at $1,000,000,000. The value of advertising, perhaps, twofold is derived from advertising.

The current Annual and Directory gives the latest figures of value added by the printing, publishing, and book-binding industries. These are printed in the book. Publishers listed in the directory are 1,000, and those of book-binding are 1,000. The directory is published by the American Newspaper Association, 100 N. 17th St., Philadelphia, Pa.

BAD BREATH

It's Your Duty to Get at the Cause and Remove it, A Word to the Wise, You Know.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the solution for removal of the bowels and positively do the work. People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant sugar coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them. Olive Tablets promptly, but firmly, on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system of impurities. They do all that doctors cannot do without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of these stimulating and healthy tablets are derived from Olive Tablets without gripping, pain or disagreeable effects of any kind. Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seven years of study. He found that patients afflicted with constipation and liver complaint with the tablets had relief.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. Take one every night for a week and note the effect.

Dr. F. M. Edwards' Olive Tablets has a record of all its own, 10c and 25c per box.

FAIRALL LAD IS SERIOUSLY ILL

John Fairall, son of J. B. Fairall, of 27 West Church street, is seriously ill at his home, suffering from a measles. His condition was considerably improved today and it is believed that the necessity of an operation has passed. Fairall is the lad who was struck by an automobile at Fifth and Church streets several months ago. He carries a bad scar on his left cheek as a result of the accident.

You can tell by the pail

What kind of feed has been given the cow. If it has come from us the milk will be rich and creamy, and there will be lots of it. There is money in milk when we supply the feed and grain. Try it for a while and see the milk money grow. Try it on the horse, too. It will improve both his condition and his value.

Try us for your next feed order of any kind.
